The units provided superb oversight to the National Engineer Brigade, force posture and general engineering support to the United States and Coalition Forces of the Combined Joint Operations Area Afghanistan. The extensive training and partnership engagements conducted and the numerous construction and deconstruction projects completed contributed immeasurably to the overall security situation and International Security Assistance Forces mission in Afghanistan. By partnering with the Afghan National Army Engineers, Joint Task Force Triple Nickel substantially increased the capacity of the Afghan National Army and greatly facilitated their ability to operate independently. The Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 555th Engineer Brigade's dedication to duty, achievements and outstanding contributions are in keeping with the highest traditions of exceptional military service and reflect great credit upon themselves, the cited units, the Engineer Regiment and the United States Army.
